Local Voices: She and I, by Hannah King

About The Book

“Best friends do everything together. Is murder any different? Keeley and Jude are closer than blood. They share everything: clothes, secrets, drinks - and blame. So when they wake up after a New Year's party in their small Northern Irish town to find Keeley's boyfriend stabbed to death beside them, they agree to share one more thing: the story they'll tell the police. But who is their story really meant to protect?”

This debut novel from County Down author Hannah King isn't your typical whodunnit murder mystery - it's also about obsessive friendship, class division and defying the expectations that come with growing up in a small town where everyone knows your family and everyone thinks they know what you're capable of. With engaging and complex characters, this is a gripping psychological thriller that will have you hooked right up to the last chapter!
